Supercaf Work Continues

Steelworkers for the Granger Construction Company finished construction of the superstructure of the new Holy Cross student center this week. Although tradition calls for an American flag to be flown atop a building when the superstructure is completed, the workers found that they had misplaced their American flag, so Hogan Hall, as the building is to be called, is now topped by a bush which had been displaced in construction. ## Cross First In New England With New Centrex Telephones

By Dennis White

At midnight Sept. 2 Centrex, a direct dialing communications system went into operation on the Holy Cross campus.

Centrex, which stands for central exchange, does most of the work of a manual switchboard automatically.

With this service, termed the most modern available, students may receive outside calls directly on their own phones.

Although there is no charge for calls made within the campus or inside the Worcester calling area, itemized monthly bills will be sent to each room for any long distance calls.

In the basement of O'Kane Hall lies the core of Centrex, 13 tons of equipment, row upon row of automatic switches.

Upstairs at the operator's desk, the old upright switchboard has given way to a tabletop console, the maze of wires and plugs to rows of simple pushbuttons.

Over 25 miles of wire were needed to connect the 1,350 lines on campus, while 86 incoming and 75 outgoing trunk lines were used to link the campus system with outside exchanges.

The students have adapted themselves to the new system quite well, although a few still persist in dialing post office box numbers, Centrex operators said.

Three Jesuits To Celebrate Gold Jubilee

Three Jesuit professors at Holy Cross celebrated their golden jubilees as members of the Society of Jesus this month.

Rev. Joseph D. Ahearn, S. J., professor of Latin, Rev. Patrick J. Cummings, S. J., professor of English, and Rev. Leo E. Fitzgerald, S. J., are the golden jubiliarians. They have a combined total of 91 years of service at Holy Cross.

Fr. Ahearn entered the Society of Jesus on August 14, 1914 and was ordained June 22, 1929 at Weston College.

Fr. Cummings entered the Society on August 14, 1916 after two years of study at Holy Cross, and he was ordained on June 22, 1929 at Weston.

Fr. Fitzgerald entered the Society on August 14, 1916 and was ordained at Weston. Fr. Fitzgerald has two brothers in the Society, Rev. William E. Fitzgerald, S. J. and Rev. James E. Fitzgerald.

Dormitory Councils' Power Increased; Govt. Pres. Announces Election Dates

A completely revamped disciplinary system for Holy Cross students was scheduled to go into effect next week with elections of dormitory councilors for each residence hall on campus.

The councilors elected for each dormitory will have primary jurisdiction over all disciplinary matters in that hall, Gerald T. Mulligan, student senate president, said Thursday.

"This is the biggest change we've ever seen discipline-wise at Holy Cross," Mulligan said. In addition to disciplinary matters, the council will have jurisdiction in the social and student senate areas, Mulligan said.

The operation as outlined by Mulligan will be, area by area:

●DISCIPLINE: The dormitory council (DC) has complete jurisdiction over all infractions of student regulations occurring within the dormitory.

This is opposed to past policy where the Dean of Men's office and the Resident Assistants took charge of all rule-breaking incidents.

The DC has authority to impose all sanctions up to and including separation from the dormitory, or "house" as it is termed under the new program.

Any case judged by the DC to require a sanction more severe than separation will be handled by the student judiciary board.

It will remain, however, the job of the DC to determine the importance of each case. The job will not be done by the Dean of Men or Student Judiciary Board.

Mulligan emphasized the DC will judge all such cases, including the common ones of drinking and having girl visitors in dormitory rooms.

●SOCIAL: The Dean of Men's office has given the individual DC complete autonomy in providing a social atmosphere for the house.

The DC may run mixers and other social events in the dormitory.

The body will have the power to establish libraries, lecture series, Masses and other dormitory social and religious events.

●SENATE: The Dormitory Councilors will also serve as Student Senators and will act on interdorm affairs within the Senate.

The council for each dormitory will choose a chairman for that dorm. He will preside over meetings of the council and act as chairman over any disciplinary proceedings.

Mulligan said the administration of the college has expressed favor of the idea of giving dormitories more such autonomy.

"We can eventually have each dorm writing its own rules if students show enough leadership, initiative and responsibility," Mulligan said.

"If this system fails, however, we'll be setting the school back a long way," he said.

Primary elections for the councilors will be held Wednesday with the finals the next day.

Anyone with a cumulative grade average of 2.0 or better is eligible for the office.

The elections will be conducted by members of each individual Class Council, Mulligan said.

The class councils will also be elected during the week, he said. Primaries will be Monday and the finals will be held Tuesday.

Pederson Named Fenwick Scholar; Given Complete Academic Freedom

By James Mungovan

Richard J. Pedersen, of Omaha, Neb., who has maintained a "straight A" cumulative average during three years at Holy Cross, has been named the first "Fenwick Scholar" in the history of the college.

Rev. William G. Guindon, S. J., vice-president and dean of the college, said being named a Fenwick Scholar is the highest award made by the college for academic accomplishment. Fr. Guindon said, "A Fenwick scholar is completely free in his senior year to design the academic program he feels will most enhance his scholastic advancement."

"He may choose his own advisor within the department of major and undertake whatever combination of credit or audit courses seems most profitable to him.

"In other words, the scholar is free from all restraints on his curriculum so as to do independent work in senior year with the advice of an advisor in his major department."

Announced Tuesday

In making the announcement at a student assembly Tuesday, Fr. Guindon said, "Pedersen's excellent academic record for the past three years has prompted the college to seek a fitting honorary award for conveying the college's pride in his achievement, and its confidence in his scholarly maturity."

Richard J. Pedersen

Pedersen, who graduated first in his class at Creighton Preparatory High School in Omaha, said he was taken by surprise when the dean informed him of the appointment and said he was "thrilled and honored" with the nomination.

Thesis Planned

The 21-year-old senior disclosed he hasn't reached any firm conclusion as to how he will set up his senior program, except that he plans to work on a thesis project on 18th-century English novelist Laurence Sterne.

His tentative plans are to take "five or six" class hours in the first semester and to construct his schedule around the thesis.

Pedersen this year was named a Resident Assistant at the college.

A member of the Cross and Scroll Society for the past three years, Pedersen is co-chairman of the society this year. The society sponsors public lectures "pertinent to Christian culture and education."

Pedersen is indefinite about his plans following graduation in 1967. They do, however, include post graduate studies, probably in English, he said.

He sees his senior year as "a test of how well I can exist outside the demands of a course schedule."

Quinlan Plans Coffee House Fall Activities

A wide ranging series of activities, including a group of calypso singers, a comedy team and a classical guitarist, are planned for Limbo, Holy Cross's campus coffee house, this semester.

Mr. Paul Quinlan, S. J., coordinator for the coffee house, outlined the activities Wednesday, saying they will provide a chance for talented students to share their abilities with others.

The coffee house, constructed last spring, opened this year sporting a new stereo sound system and several other improvements, Quinlan said.

It will be open every night of the week during the semester, with an admission fee charged only on weekends, he said. Abundant supplies of coffee will be available.

Attempts have also been made, Quinlan said, to gain more faculty use of the student-operated coffee house.

A letter was sent to all members of the faculty recently urging them to use the Campion Hall facility for small classes and seminars, he said.

Other of the varied plans include:

●PERFORMANCES BY SEVERAL rock and roll bands.

●FOLK SINGING ACTS ranging from the "classical country blues" to modern folk rock.

●A SERIES OF poetry and dramatic readings begun last year by both students and faculty members.

●SEVERAL ONE ACT plays as well as lectures by faculty members.

Director Reveals "Volpone" Cast Herson Praises Actors' Talent

Holy Cross's Fenwick Theater opens Wednesday, Oct. 20 with a presentation of Ben Jonson's "Volpone." The story of a pretender who attempts to obtain gifts by feigning sickness, "Volpone" is considered both challenging and stimulating.

The cast for Jonson's play, which one noted critic called "the one play which Jonson wrote with adult players in mind," features Rich Dilallo as Volpone.

Other players in the cast are John Dobrovolsky as Moska; Hugo D'Ambrosio as Voltore; Brian Maher as Corvina; George Conk as Corbosha; and Lynda Wilkinson as Celia.

eighty tried out for "Volpone" and the freshmen apprentice plays.

The director said, "The talent impressed me this year. Of the freshmen who showed up, I did not hear one whom I could labor 'bad.' They all showed real talent and thorough training."

Other plays on the Fenwick Theater schedule include Bertolt Brecht's "Galileo" for Nov. 30-Dec. 4; "Guys and Dolls", a music-comedy with full orchestration, Mar. 9-12; and Eugene O'Neill's "The Great God Brown", Apr. 26-30.

Arthur Copit's "Oh, Dad, Poor Dad" and the musical hit "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," will also be performed sometime during the year.

The freshmen apprentice program will be directed, with the aid of Mr. Herson, by three seniors. The apprentice schedule will include an original student play, "The Alley with Open Sky," written by Marty Hogan.

Herson Optimistic

Mr. Edward J. Herson, the director of Fenwick Theater, is highly optimistic about the prospects for a successful season.

However, he did say that "a box office success is not our primary objective. Instead, we are trying to challenge the players, to give them experience and to provide an outlet for their talents."

Mr. Herson is clearly impressed by the interest shown in drama at Holy Cross and also by the wealth of talent present. Over

Appointments To Faculty Announced By Guindon

Appointment of 24 persons to the faculty and a new staff member to the Holy Cross Counseling Center was announced recently by Rev. William G. Guindon, S. J., Dean of the College.

Dr. Eugene A. Palchanis, Shavertown, Penn., has been named to the Counseling Center staff. Palchanis studied at the University of Scranton and received a Ph. D. degree in Psychology from the University of Ottawa.

Maj. John Phillips, USMC, of Providence, R. I., has been appointed instructor of Marine Science in the Naval ROTC program. A graduate of Boston University, Maj. Phillips was commissioned in 1952.

He saw overseas service as Assistant Operations Officer with the Fifth Marine Division in Korea and held a similar position with the Ground Defense Unit in Chu Lai, Viet Nam earlier this year. A departmental breakdown on the new professors:

Department of Chemistry

Assistant Professor George A. Vidulich, a native of New York City, received a bachelor's degree in Chemistry from the University of Connecticut and Ph. D. from Brown in Physical Chemistry. He pursued post-doctoral studies at the Max Planck Institute in Germany and the Mellon Institute.

William Andruchow, Jr., instructor, received his bachelor's degree from Boston College and a Master of Science degree from Holy Cross in 1963. He was awarded a doctoral degree from Tulane University in 1966.

Department of Classics

Assistant Professor Kenneth F. Happe, a Holy Cross graduate and a former instructor of Greek and Drama Director here from 1961 to 1963, received his doctoral degree at Yale University.

Department of Biology

Associate Professor Joseph H. McSweeney, a native of Somerville, Mass., received his bachelor's degree from Holy Cross and

Buried Bomb Found!

Well, not exactly. Actually the workers are just replacing a defective 20,000 gallon oil tank located beside Kimball this week. Presently they are filling in the hole by hand. Next year a second defective tank located nearby will be replaced by hand. (Staff photo by Brian Heller).

Homecoming Plan Released By Chairman

Contrary to wide ranging doubts expressed on campus, plans for this year's Homecoming Weekend have materialized and are swinging into action, Chairman Harry Mulry said Wednesday.

Plagued by printing difficulties and by a breakdown of communications between committees separated by summer vacation, publicity activities are now moving smoothly and other departments report no difficulties, Mulry said.

The Others

Scheduled for the weekend of Sept. 30, the event will begin with a bonfire rally Friday night, followed by a dance to the rock and roll music of "The Others."

The Boston-headquartered band is currently playing in New York, Mulry said.

The bonfire will be sponsored by the Purple Key Society.

Also featured at the Friday night dance will be "The Original Sinners," a second rock and roll group.

Chris Powers and his 12-piece orchestra are scheduled to perform at a slightly less uproarious dance Saturday night after the football game with Dartmouth.

On Saturday, a concert is scheduled by Ian and Silvia, a widely-known folk music duo from Canada. The husband and wife team has become famous on record and in person for its repertoire of Canadian and American folk songs.

Ex-Crusader Editor Wins Ad Contest

By Robert Murray

Kenneth J. Moynihan, a June Holy Cross graduate and last year's editor-in-chief of The Crusader, has been selected as a recipient of one of the fourth annual Awards for Excellence in College Journalism. The award was made by the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

He has received the first award of $1,000 offered to editors and writers.

The purpose of the contest is to foster excellence in college journalism and to stimulate interest in advertising careers.

The contest was established in 1963, after a survey of key executives in the AAAA agencies disclosed that more than two-thirds of them had worked on their college or high school publications.

Battle Of The Bookstore

The absurdity of waiting thirty minutes for the privilege of just entering the overcrowded, understaffed, poorly ventilated bookstore is apparent to all. It was a situation that need not have occurred and hopefully will not occur next September.

A large step towards alleviating this problem could be taken with the cooperation of the faculty. An advance reading list compiled in each course would have allowed football players and Resident Assistants to have bought their books by September 1, Freshmen and Orientation workers by September 3. This group comprises about 850 persons and waiting lines could have been cut by more than one-third.

An additional cashier could be located at the rear entrance to the bookstore. Prices could be marked on books, thus eliminating the time-consuming task of looking up the value of almost every text.

Four fans would at least stir the cloud of smoke that only partially disguises the heavy odor of sweat. Perhaps more importantly, the drone of the fans would cover the groans and complaints of a tired and irritated student body.

The Crusader hopes that the bookstore in the Campus Center will be planned with the future, and the student, in mind.

The Dorm Councils ...

The establishment of a dorm council system with broad jurisdiction is a most important step. It gives the Holy Cross student the responsibility he has been seeking in the recent activist years. Most significantly, it changes the entire perspective of discipline, for it is no longer "us" against "them."

Discipline at Holy Cross has for too long been a game. The policies of past, overly restrictive administrations were less guidelines than inviting challenges. The Dean of Men was cast in the role of Big Brother; the R.A.'s were treated as flunkies or one of the boys. And the student body as a whole applauded anyone who bucked the system.

Now the administration is largely out of the picture and the resident assistants are there more for service than restriction. The student offenders will face peers they elected to answer charges of violating regulations they established. This first year will be a period of transition. It may not be smooth, but it will be viewed as a test of administration forthrightness and student maturity. The men elected to the dorm councils must be of the highest quality.

And yet there is a danger. The Student Senate has been ineffective in recent years, due partly to lack of leadership or lack of sensitivity displayed by past student body presidents. Now members of the dorm council will also act as student senators, and the results cannot be foreseen. If this double burden deters good men from candidacy, or if apathy yields these posts to lesser figures, the welfare of the College will suffer.

If however the students arouse themselves to the importance of next week's elections, full advantage may be taken of the opportunity which presents itself. We urge you to take these elections seriously.

...And Our Other New Rights And Responsibilities

Holy Cross has taken a bold, belated step in easing the regulations concerning check-ins, lates, and corridor absences. Under the revised form, sanctions on lates and corridor absences join the ranks of such defunct measures as compulsory mass and mandatory class attendance.

Presently, if a student plans to be out after check-in, he may either inform his resident assistant when he plans to return, or he may simply check-in at the D.C. upon his arrival. Thus, the new check-in policy's sole purpose is service; it is a service to the student in that his parents or friends will have some idea of his whereabouts in the event of an emergency. It is also a service to his parents because it assures them that he can be contacted. The student may stay out as late as he wants, or may sign out for any night of the week. To the entering freshmen this may not appear to be much of an innovation, but to those who have been under the old system, this change rocks the contention in loco parentis at its very roots. The college is now granting the individual student the freedom to decide where to go and when to return. It is also finally recognizing what has been de-facto the case for the last few years on campus. Many students had been openly flouting the check-in requirements simply because they didn't want to be treated as adolescents. So the shift in responsibility has gone from the college to the student himself.

Does this shift herald the advent of a free-for-all on the part of the students? Only if the students are not mature enough to accept the responsibility that is commensurate with this new freedom. The college has told us that they feel we are mature enough to regulate our own hours on and off campus. The only requirement the college asks in return is that the student inform his R. A. in case of emergency.

This change in policy will probably not be the last, but before any future innovations will come, we must first prove to the college that we are willing to accept and respect the responsibility granted us.

Courtship Is Morgan And Tarzan And The Skeleton In Her Bed

By Thomas Hernacki

Morgan! demands attention. A modish film that is intensely conscious of its own nonconformity, it refuses to be ignored—especially by those who search in fascination for some stability in this wild world. It's off-beaten path may very well lead to the Fountain of Mental Health.

The story follows a peculiar painter-of-sorts in his second courtship of the woman who recently divorced him. "She married me to achieve insecurity," Morgan explains. And just as reasonably, he goes about demonstrating to Leonie what she's leaving: he steals her car, plants a skeleton in her bed, terrorizes her straightlaced boyfriend, and dynamites her bedroom—all in the spirit of good clean underground fun. Leonie, however, though she isn't sure what kind of life she wants, doesn't quite approve of Morgan's tactics. He kidnaps her to an isolated glen, the better to surround her with all the sides of his simian charm. She remains detached: a perfectly ordered life may be boring, but at least it's civilized. Morgan is jailed, but manages to find his way to her wedding in his King Kong suit. After a riotous Mack-Sennett fight-fire-and-chase, society steps in. It seems Morgan is now contentedly growing flowers, in the shape of a hammer-and-sickle, on the lawn of a silent asylum. But Leonie is there too, in maternity clothes. Is she visiting him? Probably. But the impression is very strong that the entire world has wound itself into a huge mental institution.

Karel Reisz, who directed Albert Finney in an equally loud but more contented classic, Saturday Night and Sunday Morning (1961), has shaped his cast with a hand full of deft touches. David Warner misfits the part well with a crude innocence, a dash of hilarity, and a rough, retarded, but real love. With him, we penetrate not only Morgan's heart, but his imagination as well. For as our hero stares at a man, a woman, or some object in a window, Reisz intercuts shots of animals—birds, deer, apes—effecting amusing comparisons in perfect keeping with Morgan's animal-gorilla fetish. Tarzan and King Kong scenes add even greater clarity to the theatre of Morgan's mind.

No camera tricks are necessary, though, for Vanessa Redgrave's success as Leonie. This sparkling social butterfly believes she understands Morgan and his world, and tries to live in it while remaining anchored to the security outside. But which world is really insecure, unnatural, insane? Leonie fights herself while Morgan fights everyone else. Her confusions and doubts make her fantasies different from his, and somewhat more common. This commonness. Maybe that's the idea.

Rules And Regulations For "Holy Cross"

by Peter L. Pfister

"Holy Cross" is a simple game. It uses a board similar in appearance to the "Monopoly" board. The playing pieces are small tokens which represent various aspects of academic life. Tokens may assume the shape of footballs, books, typewriters, mortarboards or half-empty vodka bottles. Tokens shaped as Narragansett beer cans are no longer considered to be legal playing pieces.

The object of the game is to get around the board and to accumulate enough academic credits to get an A.B. degree, unless one has specified at the beginning of the game that he wishes to work towards a B.S. degree.

"Social Points" are also gained in the race around the board. In case the two top players have the same number of academic credits, the one with the greater number of social points will be the winner, since, after all, social points are really more important than academic credits.

One of the players is chosen to be the "Registrar." This is the equivalent to "Monopoly's" banker. The "Registrar" need not be a player, nor need he actually know how to play. His job is merely to dispense credits and social points and do his best to disrupt the smooth flow of the game by giving out the wrong courses, assigning incorrect classrooms, and sending players all over the board to solve conflicts. Each player is given a high school diploma, $1,000 in spending money and a playing token as described above.

All players shake to see who goes first. Any player attempting to claim another player's shake as his own will be expelled from the game. If he is caught, if not, he takes three extra credits toward his degree. Large-scale cheating is to be expected and has nearly become standard playing practice.

After positions have been decided, play proceeds in the usual manner, with players moving clockwise.

Watching the progress of a sample game should convince one of its ease of play and its true-to-life qualities.

Player "A" rolls and gets a three. He moves his token to: "Enroll in four guts. Collect 12 credits from Registrar."

Player "B" shakes eleven and lands on a purple "WCHC SWEEPSTAKES" square. He draws the top card and follows its instructions. "Elected president of Freshman class. Open an off-campus lounge. Collect six social points."

Player "C" shakes a seven. Player "A" observes that it was done with one die and accuses "C" of cheating. "C" claims rules do not allow for an honor system and "A" is penalized two credits.

During the hassle "C" moves eight spaces and lands in: "Win football scholarship. Move ahead two spaces and collect 18 credits."

Player "A" rolls nine and lands on: "Drop course in Remedial Thinking and enroll in Back-Bottom Chemistry. Lose four credits."

Player "B" rolls six and goes to: "Start of new semester. Lose four turns while waiting in bookstore. Also forfeit $75 for worth of books."

"C" moves on to: "Leg making winning touchdown against Army. Go to infirmary and collect nine social points and two credits."

"A" gets: "Enroll in 'So Life of the Armenian Golf Caddy'." Gain six credits. "B" lands in a surprise square: "Go directly to Dean of Men's Office. Do not pass 'Go', not collect any credits."

"C" reaches the "Free Period" square. He now has the option of auctioning any number of credits to his fellow players.

"A": "Drop Father Flanagan Biology for Rocks 'n' Stars. Collect nine credits."

"B": "Discover History of finger painting a week. Collect six credits."

"C": "Caught drinking room. Move token off board for two turns."

"A": "Open a coffee house on campus. Collect $15 for each player."

"B": "Discovered with in your room. Take 69 social points, but disenroll from game."

"C": "Take two glasses of milk in Kimball. Report to firm with broken wrist. Lose one turn while nurse looks aspirin."

And so the game goes, on or off, or until you hit the square marked: "In lower quarter class. Go directly to Viet Nam. Do not pass Commencement, not collect degree."

Best Film Schedule Ever Unveiled By Promoters

Film promoters at Holy Cross, including members of the Kimball, Modern Language and Gallagher series staffs, have planned a moving year in that field. Dr. Charles Baker of the modern language department said Wednesday.

In addition to the regular series, three or four films for the support of the Lay Apostolic Missions will be presented.

The first in this series, The Spy Who Came In from the Cold, was shown Wednesday and will be followed up on Oct. 26 when Thunderball will be shown.

The regular Kimball series, shown on Fridays and Saturdays, is highlighted by the Pink Panther, with Peter Sellers, Shane, considered to be a Western classic, and Lord Jim starring Peter O'Toole.

There will be two showings of each film, times to be posted. The admission charge will be 50 cents.

The Modern Language Series will lead off with the French film Symphonie for a Massacre on Sept. 28 and will include Eisenstein's Ivan the Terrible Part I, called by the New York Times "one of the most imposing films ever made."

This year's Gallagher Series includes some of the finest films ever presented here. Dr. Baker said.

These films are chosen by the Gallagher Committee composed of Dr. Baker, chairman, Rev. John E. Brooks, chairman of the theology department, Rev. William J. O'Halloran, chairman of the psychology department, and Professors Sergio Petraraja and Frederick Herx.

Those films designated for discussion are chosen by the committee because of the "theological and philosophical implications which might need some discussion and explanation," Dr. Baker said.

Dr. Baker said the committee would continue to present such films as long as the student interest remained high.

The schedule is:

Kimball
September 16 Pink Panther
17 Shane
23 Singing in the Rain
24 The Leather Boys
30 Long Days Journey into Night
October 1 Lost Command
7 Solomon's Mines
8 King Rat
15 El Cid

21 Street Car Named Desire
22 Ipcress File

by Robert Stevenson, Sports Editor

On Sunday, September 4, an era of Holy Cross sports came to an end. With the passing of "Hop" Riopel, the final tie with the glory years of Osmanski, Riopel, and Carroll was severed.

The last six years have seen many changes on the hill, the most drastic coming within the tenure of the present Senior class. In 1961, Jack Barry, baseball coach for forty-one years, passed away. He had been N.C.A.A. Coach-of-the-Year in 1952 and his Crusader teams amassed a total of 627 wins. In 1964 track coach Bart Sullivan, and football coach Dr. Eddie Anderson announced their retirements. Bart Sullivan coached many great runners at the Cross, including present assistant track coach Dick Donohue. Dr. Anderson's credentials are known by all. The "Dean" of American football coaches compiled over 200 wins in his career; the most notable being the 9-0 upset of Boston College, and the highly touted Jack Concannon, in 1963.

1966 saw the retirement of Athletic Director Gene Flynn. His work over the years brought Holy Cross to the status of a major power and the basketball schedule for the coming season is a tribute to his efforts.

On June 30, Hop Riopel announced his retirement as Co-ordinator of Athletics, but had consented to remain as head baseball coach. This was not to be the case, however, as he was felled by a heart attack on August 29 in his Worcester home.

For thirty-seven years Hop gave unselfishly to Holy Cross. He was one of its finest athletes and, while not the scholar that others were, he refused to relent on his studies until he had mastered them. As a coach he handled varsity teams in basketball and baseball, assisted with the football team and coached freshman squads for several years in both football and baseball. He was an assistant coach on all of the school's national champions, baseball in 1952 and basketball in 1947 (N.C.A.A.) and 1954 (N.I.T.). As Co-ordinator-of-Athletics he performed the nearly impossible job of both scouting and recruiting while acting as the sole full-time member of the C.C. coaching staff.

In his role of baseball coach, he was not free from critics, but his 80-38-1 record spoke louder than the dissenters.

A new era has begun, with new coaches and a promising crop of underclassmen. With the revisions and improvements that have taken place recently Holy Cross has come a long way, but the underlying spirit is still the same one that could be felt on the hill when Hop starred for the Purple. The fieldhouse will see many new players, and coaches in the years to come, but without Hop's friendly smile and big cigar, it won't be quite the same.

HC Looks To Future

by Walt Guertin

Last season Holy Cross suffered through one of its worst athletic years in recent history. Are Crusaders in store for more of the same, or are improvements on the way?

Future athletic success at Holy Cross will hinge greatly on the success of expanded recruiting programs, especially in football and basketball. It is evident that if we remain lax in recruiting future athletes, the time will come when Holy Cross will no longer be able to compete with its present rivals.

Football has undergone the biggest change. In past years football recruiting was done mostly through the efforts of the late Albert D. (Hop) Riopel. He would receive information concerning prospects mostly from alumni. It must be noted that he did a remarkable job under the circumstances, but we reached a point where such a method was obsolete.

With the hiring of fulltime coaches, recruiting methods have improved but they still have their problems. Freshman Coach Carlin Lynch believes that the main recruiting problem is competing against the Ivy League schools.

The high-school record of the prospect often eliminates him. However those who are satisfactory academically often find the Ivies more attractive.

The only way to combat this is to form a wider range of top-grade candidates. Coach Lynch feels that now there will be four coaches handling the recruiting chores, an efficient and thorough job can be done.

During the past year, the coaching staff was able to contact more players than ever before. High-school coaches and game films helped them obtain the best players they could find. Now it will be up to the players to prove them right.

There are some doubts as to whether basketball recruiting was successful. Coach Jack Donohue is satisfied. Recruited were Jack Lahey, a 6'1" guard from St. John's in Shrewsbury and Tony Barclay, a 6'3" forward from Long Island.

Coach Donohue found last year's freshman team his biggest recruiting problem. Prospects were skeptical of being able to play with such fine talent ahead of them.

However Donohue was not concerned with numbers this year, but rather the type of player able to push or beat out his present squad. He believes he has obtained this type in Lahey and Barclay.

The track team uses a somewhat different method of recruiting. The first source consists of the helpful information given by the members of the team. Secondly, the newspapers play a major role in recruiting. Coach Dick Donohue believes the best criterion to a runner's ability is his time, which is easily accessible in what he calls "strategic newspapers."

However the recruiting is not as easy. The school must compete with such standout squads as Georgetown, Villanova, and Notre Dame, with only one, sometimes two, scholarship being offered.

However Coach Donohue feels that as long as he can obtain at least one really outstanding athlete per year, the team will have the legs for championship meets, although the dual meets may suffer by it.

Baseball has usually been little problem. Only one to two scholarships are given but the fine players usually end up at Holy Cross, due mainly to its fine reputation in that sport.

The steps toward better recruiting have been taken. It only remains that they be carried out to their fullest.

John Gorter, a two-way performer, will be a mainstay in the line and defensive middle.

Gorter Shines In Drills Despite Late Arrival

College football, for most teams, means two platoons...twenty-two players. This year at Holy Cross, due to injuries to offensive tackle and a need for experienced linebackers, Senior John Gorter has been called upon to handle the difficult chore of playing both ways.

When asked his feelings about being chosen to work both offense and defense, John, a modest 6'1", 215 pounder, said: "I am very pleased to be put in this position. The offensive blocking technique at tackle is a bit new to me but I hope to improve in this area. I am anxious to play at any position where the coaches feel I'll help most."

The fact that John is presently the only two-way performer on the squad becomes even more impressive when one considers that he arrived a week and a half late for fall camp.

John was at Marine OCS at Quantico when the football forces returned to Holy Cross. Ten pounds trimmer than last year, John was switched to the offensive tackle slot where it is hoped his added speed will be utilized in pulling plays.

John, who resides in East Providence, R. I., found the team morale noticeably high on his return and credits this spirit with aiding him in making up for lost time. "The desire to play football was infectious--the team is really up."

John's future plans after graduation include three years of Marine service and a subsequent business career. Before that time, however, John hopes to do his best to provide Holy Cross a few football wins this fall, whether he be called to do it as a defensive or offensive performer, or both.

RAMBLINGS

Syracuse didn't have a chance against Baylor right from the start. As one Syracuse paper observed: "When Schwartzie (Coach Ben Schwartzwalder) came out for TV in a shirt and tie, he must have shaken up his own troops. They just don't expect Benny to dress any differently on game day than he does in practice". . . Anyone who wants to get a preview of HC's hockey team can take the short trip to the Worcester Arena at Webster Square any Wednesday this fall. The team is preparing for its first season as a full-fledged varsity sport. . . The quote department presents: Bob Reid, basketball coach at Little Southern California College, operated by Assembly of God Church: "Students must sign a pledge not to smoke, drink, play cards or go to movies on penalty of expulsion. You can imagine what that does to my recruiting."; Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky discussing his TV show: "I've been doing TV for nine years. I'm on for 30 minutes every Sunday at 6:30--right between the '20th Century' and 'Lassie.' That's prime time. The show is so popular that preachers told me they had to change the time of their Sunday evening services. They used to begin at 7, but my show isn't over 'til then. So now church services in Kentucky don't start 'til 7:30 or 8."; and finally Coach Abe Lemons of Oklahoma City U.: "Some of the second-rate kids in New York City would be first-rate in this area of the country. It's just a matter of numbers. Most kids in New York play basketball, it seems. Down here it's football". . . HC's '66 baseball team wound up with an 11 and 7 record. Graduate Elliott Klein and senior Jack Dolan picked up 10 of those wins, while Dolan led the pitching corps with a 2.70 ERA. The Cross outthit their opponents .251 to .217, outscored them 99 to 81, and outpitched them with a 3.15 ERA compared to the 3.42 compiled by their rivals. . . Only two basketball scholarships given out to the class of '70: Jackie Lahey from St. John's in Shrewsbury and Tony Barclay from Christ the King in New York City. . .

Word from Coach Jack Donohue's basketball camp had Bobby Boyd, high scorer in Worcester as a junior at St. Peter's, as MVP during the last session. Just about all of HC's basketball players stopped there for at least a week's diet of strictly basketball. . . The physical fitness program under freshman basketball coach Jim Herriion began Thursday for its second year. Coach Herriion emphasizes that it is open to any and all students. . . Anyone planning on hitting Miami for the Hurricane Classic and wondering about Orange Bowl tickets might as well forget it. It's been sold out for quite some time. The Classic starts off the week of festivities climaxed by the football contest. Although the pairing have not been announced, it looks as if we'll draw home team Miami with two notable transfer students eligible: Mickey Whitman, a counsellor at Jack Donohue's basketball camp the past two summers, and Bill Soens, who had some academic trouble at Villanova (yes, Villanova). . . This school's policy of charging itself (any organization) $150 for the use of its own gymnasium continues to amaze all concerned.

Kaminski Puts Toe Into H.C. Attack

The name of the game is football, and Holy Cross plans to use the foot often to win games this season. Those who saw last Sunday's scrimmage on Fitts Field were much impressed by the place-kicking of junior Mike Kaminski.

Mike is a rugged 6 foot 190 pounder from College Park, Md. A pre-med major, he attended Gonzaga High School in Washington, D.C. and hopes to return to the Washington area after graduation to study at Georgetown. In high school, Mike was a fullback and linebacker as well as a place-kicker. Mike began kicking as a sophomore in high school, and he has compiled an amazing record here. In his freshman year, Mike hit 16 for 16 point after touchdown attempts and 1 of 2 field goals. Mike feels, are confidence and timing. Confidence involves more than just self-assurance, for the kicker relies heavily on the quickness of the ball holder and the strength of the line. Mike expects a good season primarily because of his confidence in his teammates, especially Bob Lawson, who holds the ball on kick attempts. "Lawson," he said, "has very quick hands and I don't have to worry about having a kick blocked. This is invaluable to my confidence as well as my timing."

Cal Sodalists
On 3-Day
Visit To H.C.

Ten delegates, including three girls from the Santa Clara, Calif., College Sodality, visited the Holy Cross campus this week.

The students were making a tour of Eastern cities following the National Federation of Sodalities Convention in Washington, D.C.

The students made the three-day visit at the invitation of the Holy Cross Sodality.

J. Carl, Gartner, Edward G. Mahoney, Robert F. Kumor, John J. Feeley, and John F. Baldovin represented Holy Cross at the Washington convention. They were accompanied by Rev. Joseph Labran, S. J. and Mr. Paul Quinlan, S. J.

Discussions on race relations, poverty, and peace and ecumenism were held at the convention, which had as its theme "The Christian in the Modern World."

At the convention Rev. Joseph MacFarland, S. J., National Director of Sodalities, urged college sodalities to adapt the teachings of Vatican II to their sodality work.

The Holy Cross Sodality recently rewrote its constitution in the light of Vatican II, Sodality officials said.

Mulledy

"I am aware, of course, that last week boys were bringing their mothers and fathers or their girlfriends on a tour of the new building, and I understand this continued through the weekend.

"Ordinarily, however, the rules of the school on girls and drinking apply to Mulledy IV as they do to any other corridor."

One student who entertained a girl in his room Saturday night said, "We acted completely on our own, without any sort of permission."

Fr. Banks said the only disciplinary agent within the dormitory would be the dorm council, a body which has not yet been elected.

Mr. Joseph H. Maguire, "house master" and resident of Mulledy, said the dorm council would be formed within a week, but he declined to state its functions until after it had met.

Until then, at least, the students living in the thinnest air on campus seem to feel justified in their attitudes. Plans are now in progress to obtain permission to hold a small, private party on the corridor in the near future.

Dr. Charles A. Baker, Jr., a member of the modern language department, has accepted an invitation to be present on Mulledy IV that evening with his wife, Joan.

Severed Lines
Rob Frosh Of WCHC Sounds

An error in the New England Bell Telephone Company's installation of the new Centrex system, compounded by a copper shortage, has prevented reception of Holy Cross radio station WCHC in several areas of the campus.

While burying cables for the new telephone system this summer workers accidentally cut wires which carry WCHC to Beaven and Wheeler Halls.

The school electrician informed station officials of the situation a week before the school year began, Thomas Osgood, manager of the station, said.

Osgood said the problem has not yet been solved because of a nationwide shortage of copper. The wire needed to mend the break must be copper, he said.

Osgood called the present reception in the two freshman dorms "poor to nonexistent."

Center Gives
Grad Record,
LSAT Course

The college Counseling Center again this year is offering a short course in reading improvement and study skills along with a special course in preparation for the Law School Admission Test and the Graduate Record Examinations.

The course on reading and study skills will be offered to all students and will meet twice a week for 10 weeks beginning Sept. 19, at a cost of $30.

For the fourth year, the special preparatory course for law test and the Graduate Records will be offered to interested seniors and juniors.

This course will meet three times a week from Sept. 19 until Nov. 12, also at a cost of $30.

Civil Service
Exams Given
In Oct., June

The U.S. Civil Service Commission last week announced the dates for the Federal Service Entrance Examination during the 1966-67 school year.

Between Oct. 15, 1966 and June 17, 1967 the test is scheduled to be given eight times.

Potential Holy Cross graduates were urged by Civil Service authorities to take the test, a requisite for careers in federal positions.

Chairman John W. Macy strongly encouraged college and graduate students to compete in the examination, stressing that "federal programs need talented men and women."

Rugby Promises Thrills
Features Better Schedule

Pete Lucas

Like all other Crusader teams, the Holy Cross Rugby Football Club looks forward to its new season with anxiety and enthusiasm. Under the direction of club President Frank Jacobellis, the rugger assembled for their first practice session on Monday. With a good turnout of some seventy-five men, despite the loss to ROTC, interest is already at a high point.

Rugby, for those who are not well acquainted with the sport, is an international game that is somewhat a mixture of football and soccer. A good team, made up of fifteen men, depends on the strength of its forwards, the speed and agility of its backs, and the overall aggressiveness and pursuit of the entire squad. Winning depends on scoring. A ball carried across the goal line and touched down is worth three points (a try); the place kick or drop kick after a try is worth two points; a field goal (place kick or drop kick) is worth three points.

The Crusaders, lacking size in their forward wall, are determined to make up for it with excellent conditioning, speed, and aggressiveness. The most important aspects of successful rugby are teamwork, skillful passing, and tactical kicking, all of which are being specially stressed by team Captain Tim Grossnickle and the club officers.

This year success will largely depend on the juniors, with returning veterans Orion Douglass, Mike Shortleeve, club Secretary Kevin Kelly, treasurer Wayne Cascio, and Capt. Grossnickle. Kicking specialist Frank Jacobellis, and hooker Mike Garvey, the senior seniors, will lead the team as President and Vice-president respectively.

The season opens on September 24, at Fordham University. A. B. and C teams participate. This shapes up as a good season with Dartmouth for Homecoming weekend, with traditional Brown, Harvard Business, Tufts among others, filling out the schedule.

With hopes for a successful season the Crusader rugger eagerly anticipates the spring and the national tournament to be co-sponsored by Holy Cross and Notre Dame in November.

Through the hard work of Mike Shortleeve, the rugby club soon will be publishing the first issue of its Rugby magazine for sale before Homecoming.

Strict Security Measures Taken
To Discourage Bookstore Bandits

Alarmed over recent increases in the pilferage rate at the campus bookstore, new security measures have been taken to prevent thefts. A prominent sign (above) refreshes the memories of book collectors who may have forgotten a long-standing injunction against shop-lifting. Realizing that store clerks are only human (above right), and occasionally miss some less-than-honest activity of certain amoral college elements, mundane as well as esthetic precautions have been taken (below right).
